City Water Down 11.8 Feet Now Cooper Lake Is At Critical Stage

Kingston's water supply reserve in Cooper Lake has become threatening to the point of reaching a critical stage in the next two or three weeks without replenishing rains, it was revealed today, as wells continue going dry in county areas and emergency action has been required to supplement or substitute supply sources in some communities.

Edmund T. Cloonan, local water department superintendent, today reported Cooper Lake down 11.8 feet, the county health department continues receiving almost daily reports of dried up wells, and residents of a Kerhonkson area have been forced to tap a stream after failure of a small reservoir supply. New York City's Ashokan reservoir is dwindling at a threatening daily rate.

Long Drought Hurt

This year's long summer drought has brought the Cooper Lake supply to a level less than two feet above the 13.3 feet it reached on this date in 1957 when the city began, but was not required to complete, emergency plans. The reservoir had reached 17.5 feet below spillway crest on Oct. 24, 1957 before rains reached sufficient intensity to replenish it.

Monday's rain in the Cooper Lake area was 56 of an inch, which was insufficient, under conditions, to bring any noticeable gains in reservoir reserve supplies. August rain this year was only 1.52 inches in the Cooper Lake area. The 1957 total was 1.22 inches. Monday's rain in the Ashokan area was .45 of an inch. Cloonan noted today that the months of May, June, July and August, brought no single rainfall of an inch or more. The last substantial single downpour was 1.66 inches on April 29. Several storms of an inch or more of rain, in the next two or three weeks, he said, could be helpful in replenishing the Cooper Lake supply.

A health department report today revealed that a reservoir known as "the VanEtten supply" in upper Kerhonkson (Minnekaqua road) supplying 25 to 30 homes, is no longer in use and residents there are getting water from a nearby stream. Wells were reported going dry last month in the Kerhonkson area and in the sparsely populated towns of Hardenburgh and Denning, and later reports indicated that others are now dry there and in other county areas.

Not So Bad as '49-'50

The Ashokan Reservoir, down some 27 feet, has not been as dangerously low as in 1949-50 when Dr. Wallace E. Howell was hired to seed clouds and make rain for the city.

Ellenville, Port Ewen and Saugerties have had their water supply problems during the summer, but a health department report today indicated no further reports of serious trouble in those communities. Restrictions were imposed some time ago on use of water in the Barclay Heights section of Saugerties and tapping of a new well supply is under consideration there.

Meters Help City

An August report noted that the Wiltwyck School at Esopus was faced with a water supply problem, but a report from there today indicated a sufficient supply is still available.

Kingston is in a more favorable condition than it was in the drought year of 1957 because since then its entire service has been metered. The city had previously metered only the heaviest users of water.

Open New Concrete Lanes On 9W Near Lake Katrine

The two new concrete lanes on Route 9W in the area of the arterial traffic circle work at the intersection of Route 199 at Lake Katrine was opened for traffic Monday under restricted conditions. Traffic is permitted to move over the two completed portions of the southbound lane at slow speeds. A cut off near the state police barracks permits entrance and exit to Route 199 for those entering or leaving Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge.

Town of Ulster residents recently showed their concern about the detour which was named "washboard alley" and the matter was brought before a recent Ulster Town Board meeting.

The matter of opening the completed lane to traffic to eliminate the unpaved part of the detour, was brought to the attention of Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock by Ulster Supervisor Alexander Banyo.

Assemblyman Wilson conferred with representatives of John Arborio, Inc., contractors, and as a result of this meeting it was announced that the new section of highway would be opened to traffic under restricted conditions.

Traffic seemed to be moving well yesterday and slowed down only during the rush hours when bridge traffic going to the International Business Machines Corp. plant was heavy.

Wilson for Temporary Bridge, Teetsel Says

In a long distance call from Buffalo where the Republican State convention is being held, Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, last night assured members of the Citizens Temporary Bridge Committee that he stands firmly behind them in their drive for a temporary vehicular bridge over Esopus Creek to replace the one which collapsed August 28.

This assurance was given in a message to Robert Teetsel, chairman of the association. The committee was informed by Chairman Teetsel of a telephone call received by him last Friday evening from Assemblyman Wilson stating that he would do everything in his power to have a temporary vehicular bridge installed by contacting the state superintendent of public works.

Coming This Week

A state engineer revealed today, meanwhile, that a Bailey bridge is being dismantled at Prattville and is to be moved, in whole or part, to the site of the collapsed span, this week. One source indicated that some of it might arrive today. The Bailey bridge was used at Prattville to replace one washed out in a flood some two years ago, and while there also accommodated vehicles.

Following a recent announcement that the state department plans to erect a temporary vehicular bridge, Teetsel placed a call to Assemblyman Wilson who is attending the Republican State Convention in Buffalo.

Answers During Meeting

The call came through while the Committee was in session at The Barn.

Chairman Teetsel asked Wilson if there were any change in the opinion which he had expressed on Friday evening in reference to the erection of a temporary vehicular bridge.

Assemblyman Wilson informed Teetsel he had not changed his opinion.

Commitment Stands

"Does this mean you are still in favor of a temporary vehicular bridge?" Chairman Teetsel inquired.

Wilson replied, "my commitment still stands."

Teetsel then asked whether this means Wilson on his return from the convention will contact the State Department of Public Works to get a temporary vehicular bridge, and Assemblyman Wilson replied he would.

On being informed of the attitude of Assemblyman Wilson, the committee expressed its thanks. The committee also expressed its thanks to the hundreds of people who have signed petitions asking for a temporary vehicular bridge and will continue to seek signatures of those who have not already signed.

All members of the committee were present at the meeting Monday evening, except James Martin.

Two Officers Elected

Elected treasurer of the committee was Charles Schaller. Joseph McConnell was named secretary.

Petitions were counted and signatures numbered over 2,000 with more petitions to be turned in. It was voted to keep the petitions in circulation the next meeting on Monday, Sept. 24, with an objective of the least 3,000 signatures.

Teetsel said the original intention of the committee to present these signatures to Governor

Collusion Is Charge Of Soviet 4-Power Relations

Out, Moscow Rules

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government declared today that because of alleged collusion between France and West Germany there is an imperative need for a German peace treaty that would solve the Berlin problem.

A government statement distributed by the official Soviet news agency Tass said the urgency of the situation has been heightened by French President Charles de Gaulle's recent visit with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

No Date Mentioned

The statement said that if the Western powers do not agree to a German peace treaty, the Soviet Union will sign a separate treaty with East Germany. No date was mentioned.

Commenting on De Gaulle's visit to Germany, the statement charged the French leader is setting up a Bonn-Paris axis with the aim of taking control of Europe's forces.

The Soviet statement was the second issued through Tass news agency in two days on Berlin.

Asks End of Base

Monday, a statement said the Soviet Union refused to renew four-power relations in Berlin and called on Britain, the United States and France to abolish what was called the "NATO military base" in the city.

The Soviet statement came Monday as thousands of Allied troops in combat gear launched a major test of their ability to spring to West Berlin's defense.

The alert, involving most of the West's 11,500-man garrison, ended early today. Military officials were reported satisfied with the results.

Out Since '48: Moscow

The Soviet government statement, released in Moscow, rejected the Western position that Berlin still is under four-power control. It ignored Allied calls for re-establishing relations broken last month when the Soviet Berlin commandant was withdrawn and his post turned over to an East German.

The statement claimed four-power administration has not been in existence since 1948 when, it said, the United States, France, and Britain set up a separate military command.

"West Berlin has now been turned into a military base of the aggressive North Atlantic bloc directed against the U.S.S.R., the G.D.R. (East Germany) and other peaceful states," the statement said.

First Alert Since April

Calling for abolition of the Western base, the statement said, "the Soviet Union had nothing to do with these unilateral actions of the Western powers and cannot bear responsibility for their consequences."

The West Berlin alert was the first major Allied test exercise since April 3. A spokesman said it was designed to "test and evaluate the mobility of Allied units and their ability to react to various situations."

The test was directed by the French commandant, Maj. Gen. Edouard Toulouse. He was assisted by the U.S. and British commandants, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II and Claude Dunbar.

The U.S. Army has 6,500 men in West Berlin, the British 3,000 and the French about 2,000.

Thursday Is Last To Register at Election Board

Persons who plan to be out of the city on the days of registration in October, are reminded by the Ulster County Board of Elections that the last day for central registration is Thursday.

With tomorrow the last day, the Board of Elections on John Street, will receive until closing time any applicant, either for central registration or for application for absentee ballot.

Application for disabled, or sick persons either for absentee registration or absentee ballot may be made now. All voters in the city where personal registration is required, should remember that in order to be eligible to vote one must register.

Original Group May Be Too Old

Age Favors New Astros In Future Moon Shots

HOUSTON (AP)—The man who directs the nation's manned spacecraft flights says such famous names as John H. Glenn Jr. may not be among the astronauts riding the first U.S. rocket to the moon.

Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center here, said age may be working against Glenn and the other six original astronauts when Project Apollo's moon shots begin six to eight years from now.

All Are Test Pilots

In introducing nine new astronauts on Monday, Gilruth said: "Some of the original seven are highly motivated to make the moon shot, but the age factor very well could make it difficult for them."

Ages of the new group range from 31 to 35, compared to 35 to 41 for the 1959 group. Glenn is the oldest.

Gilruth said the 253 volunteers who submitted applications last spring made it possible to select nine excellent men. Two are civilians with Navy training.

The new astronauts—all test pilots—are:

Neil A. Armstrong, 32, a native of Wapakoneta, Ohio, a test pilot of the X15, and an aeronautical research engineer at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Maj. Frank Borman, 34, Air Force, a native of Gary, Ind., and an instructor at the Aerospace Research Pilot School at Edwards.

Lt. Charles Conrad Jr., 32, Navy, a native of Philadelphia and safety officer for Fighter Squadron 142, Miramar Air Station, Calif.

Other New Additions

Lt. Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr., 34, Navy, a native of Cleveland, and a flight instructor at the Oceana Naval Air Station, Va.

Capt. James A. McDivitt, 33, Air Force, of Jackson, Mich., and an experimental flight test officer at Edwards.

Elliott M. See Jr., 35, a native of Dallas, Tex., and an experimental test pilot for the General Electric Co. at Edwards.

Capt. Thomas P. Stafford, 32, Air Force, a native of Weatherford, Okla., and chief of the performance branch of the experimental test pilot division at Edwards.

Capt. Edward H. White II, 32, Air Force, a native of San Antonio, Tex., and an experimental test pilot with the Aeronautical System Division at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

Young GOP Will Honor J. R. Mayone

Former Surrogate Judge John B. Sterley, well-known local banker, attorney and political leader, will be the guest speaker at the Past President's Dinner of Ulster County Young Republican Club, honoring John Ray Mayone on Saturday 6:30 p. m. at Tommy's Restaurant, 11 High Street.

Mayone, city marshal for the past eight years, and a prominent ex-Marine served as president of the Young Republicans during 1961.

Tickets Available

Augustus Schrowang, chairman and Richard Cahill, co-chairman of the dinner announced that tickets are available from them or may be purchased at the door.

Judge Sterley, president and counsel of First Federal Savings and Loan Association, served as Ulster County Surrogate Judge from 1944 to 1956. He was named Republican city chairman in 1959 and served until the designation of Attorney Howard C. St. John in 1961.

Judge Sterley had previously served as city GOP chairman from 1940 to 1944.

A life-long Republican, Judge Sterley has been a member of Ulster County Republican Committee for over 20 years and served as committeeman from the Second Ward for 18 years. He attended Syracuse University and later Albany Law School where he was awarded his LL.D. Degree.

He is a veteran of World War I and belongs to the American Legion.

Mentioned as Candidate

Mayone, also a well-known local Republican, was prominently mentioned early last year as a possible candidate for mayor.

An active member of Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, Mayone was named the first Marine of the Year at the Marine Corps League ball here in 1960.

Mayone has served as commandant of the detachment for two years, and is also active in Joyce-Schirck Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Kingston Post 150, American Legion. He has been chairman of the Marine

Wilson Has Second Term on State GOP Committee

Ulster County's Assemblyman, who is chairman of the Republican Central Committee, has been chosen for a second term on the New York State Republican Executive Committee.

Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock was elected at a meeting of the committee Monday night at Buffalo where the GOP State Convention is in session.

Wilson represents the Third Judicial District on the committee as does Mrs. Myrtle Tinkelpaugh who was chosen from Columbia County.

Two Attend Dinner

The district is comprised of the counties of Albany, Rensselaer, Schoharie, Greene, Columbia, Sullivan and Ulster.

Present at a buffet dinner held Tuesday evening for county chairmen and vice chairmen were Assemblyman Wilson and Mrs. Raymond LeFevre of Bloomington, who is vice chairman of the Ulster committee.

Bernhardt S. Kramer, local representative of Congressman J. Ernest Wharton, said three convention sessions were scheduled today, none Wednesday morning, and a night session tomorrow to nominate Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller to run for another term.

Trooper Is Hurt In Crash Fatal To Brooklyn Man

A Brooklyn man is dead, a New York State Trooper is in serious condition at Peekskill Hospital and a Queens man is in fair condition at the same hospital as the result of a three-car accident Monday on Taconic State Parkway 1000 feet south of Route 6, Westchester County.

Louis Landman, 40, of 82 Rockaway Parkway, Brooklyn, was killed in the accident. He was a passenger in a car being operated by Robert C. Brockway, 29, of 88730 24th Street, Hellis, Queens, according to reports from State Police at Putnam Valley.

Secor was returning to duty at Buchanan Barracks after being subpoenaed to court for a civil action at the time of the accident.

Brockway was reported in fair condition today at Peekskill Hospital after suffering a possible cerebral concussion, lacerations of the left eyebrow and chest injuries according to police reports which further explained that 12 stitches were required to close the wound about the eyebrow, and that X-rays of his skull and ribs had been taken.

Reports were that cars being operated by Secor and Mary E. Kellogg, 54, of Box 306, Mahopac, were northbound on the park-

19 PC Cut Favored In New Aid Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—A slash of about 19 per cent—$1,378,177,000, in new funds for the foreign aid program was recommended today by the House Appropriations Committee.

If sustained by the House later this week, the committee's action would give the aid program $5,956,852,000 in additional money for the current fiscal year instead of the $7,335,029,000 requested by President Kennedy.

The President had asked for about $211 million more than Congress had authorized in separate legislation prescribing financial limitations on the program for military and economic help to friendly nations.

The committee-imposed cut was about as deep as Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., predicted several weeks ago. Passman, chairman of a subcommittee that drafted the aid money bill after several months of hearings, set a reduction goal of close to $1.5 billion at that time.

Even if Congress provided no new money this year, the committee said in a formal report accompanying the bill, there would be enough money left over from prior appropriations to finance the program for about 25 months. Most of the carryover, however, has been earmarked or obligated.

"The pipeline of unexpended funds is increasing at an alarming rate," the committee said, estimating the balance at $6.7 billion as of June 30, 1962.

The committee's report contained caustic criticism of some phases of the aid program and referred to expenditure estimates as "pie in the sky figures."

"An indeterminate but not inconsequential element of the program is the cost to borrow money which is so freely given away," the committee said. "It is a one-way street—the goods or services go out, the U.S. Treasury pays the bill, and the U.S. receives nothing of a tangible nature in return."

The program for the present year proposes economic assistance for 73 nations and seven foreign territories and possessions, and military aid for 38 countries. Some of the help, the committee complained, goes to neutral nations that have often criticized the United States and its allies but have refrained from criticizing the Soviet Union.

The committee wrote into the

Weather Eye Orbits, Aid For Schirra

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)

—The sixth in a series of Tios weather satellites rocketed into orbit today and its camera eyes went on immediate alert for hurricanes, typhoons and other storms around the globe.

The electronic weatherman shot away from Cape Canaveral at 3:35 a. m. aboard a three-stage Thor-Delta rocket. About two hours later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced the satellite was in successful orbit about 400 miles high.

11th in Row

It was the 11th straight successful satellite launching for the 92-foot Delta vehicle, this nation's most reliable space booster. It also made six successful launches in as many tries for the Tios satellite program.

The two television cameras carried by Tios 6 were to begin transmitting cloud cover pictures after two orbits were completed. During the early phases of flight tracking stations were to determine the precise course and how well the satellite equipment was functioning.

Key for Orbital Flight

The NASA statement said "Tios 6 is in orbit and all systems appear to be functioning normally."

The satellite also could predict the weather for next week's scheduled orbital flight of U.S. astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr.

Sea conditions in the Atlantic and Pacific recovery zones will be watched closely as Schirra's Sept. 28 launching date nears. Hurricanes and typhoons are definite threats in both oceans this time of year.

Insurance Shot

If Schirra is brought back to earth after one, two or three orbits, his capsule will land in the Atlantic. Completion of four, five or six orbits would drop him in the Pacific.

Tios 6 originally was scheduled for launching in November, but was advanced two months to provide insurance in case the all-or-none Tios 5 satellite should lose its one remaining camera eye.

Unanimous Choice on Second

Morgy Is Nominated, Brawls Feature Parley

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Robert M. Morgenthau, a reserved, soft-spoken lawyer almost unknown in politics three weeks ago, won the Democratic nomination for governor in a pre-dawn victory today after a shouting, brawling convention session.

Veterans termed it one of the most unruly in the party's history.

Strife Follows First

Morgenthau, the 43-year-old son of Henry Morgenthau Jr., U.S. Secretary of Treasury under Franklin D. Roosevelt, now holds the rugged assignment of opposing Republican Gov. Rockefeller in his bid for reelection.

The convention, which broke down for several hours during the night in runaway demonstrations, bitter wrangling and parliamentary clashes, convenes again today to complete the ticket.

Morgenthau was nominated unanimously on the second ballot. Most of the strife followed the first ballot, on which he fell seven votes short of the 570 votes needed for nomination.

His closest rival, Queens Dist. Atty. Frank D. O'Connor received 375 first-ballot votes.

Trio in Heated Exchange

At one point in the early morning hours, Nassau County Democratic Chairman John F. English, an O'Connor supporter, dashed down an aisle, vaulted 4½ feet onto the stage of the Syracuse

War Memorial Auditorium and launched into a heated exchange with the chairman, Mayor Erasmus Corning of Albany, over parliamentary procedure.

A detail of police was called to help convention officials preserve order, especially in dealing with

Relyea Suggests School Board Ask Rates Revision

Charles Relyea (R), supervisor of the Town of Hurley, issued a statement today that he was "in wholehearted accord with the statements previously made by Benson Krom, concerning the inequality of the school tax rate of the Kingston Consolidated District in the Town of Hurley."

Relyea pointed out that it is the consensus that a higher school tax is paid per $1,000 of true value in the Town of Hurley than in any other town or the City of Kingston in the Consolidated District.

He added that the Hurley Town Board stood ready to do whatever possible to relieve the school tax burden on the citizens

GOP Keynoter Hits Opponents' Bossism

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Republican delegates roared their approval today as the GOP state convention opened with a slambang attack on the Democrats and that party's newly chosen candidate for governor.

The convention, set to renominate the Rockefeller team, responded with vocal vigor to keynoter Walter J. Mahoney's charge that party bosses had "black-jacked" the Democratic convention at Syracuse.

While declaring war on the Democrats, the Senate majority leader also held out the olive branch of peace to members of the new Conservative Party, whom he begged to come home to the GOP.

HRSH Chief Gives Views on Policy

Hudson River State Hospital's new senior director, Dr. Herman B. Snow, of Ogdensburg, who takes office at the Poughkeepsie institution Oct. 11, will expand the open ward technique at the hospital "only if I find that it is feasible."

Dr. Snow said that all patients at the St. Lawrence State Hospital, where he has been director the last eight years, are now on open ward status. Under the open ward policy patients with good behavior records are permitted the freedom of the hospital grounds.

Dr. Snow will succeed Dr. Robert C. Hunt, who is retiring as senior director at HRSH.

Burroughs Sites To Be Open to Public This Fall

At two places associated with the naturalist, John Burroughs, one at Roxbury and the other at West Park, there will be an open house day this fall, with a program beginning at 11 a. m.

At each, visitors may bring a picnic lunch and take part in an afternoon nature walk conducted by members of the John Burroughs Natural History Society.

The first of these will be Saturday, Sept. 29 at Woodstock Lodge in the Catskills near Roxbury, where John Burroughs spent the summers of his later years and wrote A Hay-Barn Idyl and other essays about the Catskills. The house is furnished largely with furniture he made and there are personal mementoes and photographs. To reach the Lodge, visitors may take Route 28 from Kingston to the short cut from Arkville to Route 30 through Roxbury. The lodge is on a side road, well marked, beyond the village Memorial Field, where John Burroughs is buried, is reached by the same road.

Saturday, Oct. 6, open house will be held at Slabside, the rustic cabin near West Park, which the naturalist built as a woodland retreat for himself. There will be a program and a nature walk here too. The cabin maintained as a memorial by the John Burroughs Association, has been kept as he left it and is a unique literary shrine. To reach Slabside, visitors may turn west from Route 9W at West Park and follow the macadam road to the top of the hill, parking near the Burroughs Drive sign and walk to the cabin, about a half mile along the dirt road through the woods.

Three white men and a white teen-ager are being held in the burning of a Negro church in racially troubled southwest Georgia. Authorities said they admitted talking about Negro church burnings and "just decided to burn them one." They were captured by FBI agents.

Solution of the case was announced by the Justice Department in Washington Monday night highlighting racial developments in which government representatives played a considerable part.

Among them were: A federal appeals court in Richmond, Va., to outlaw racial discrimination in public schools attended by children of a big Army base in Virginia.

A federal appeals court in Richmond ruled invalid Charlottesville's pupil placement plan for elementary pupils.

A Justice Department spokesman said a few U.S. marshals will accompany James H. Meredith, a 29-year-old Negro, when he reports for registration at the University of Mississippi in the next few days.

Sheriff Z. T. Mathews of Terrell County, Ga., said the four white persons held in jail at Dawson on arson charges admitted setting fire to the Negro High Hope Baptist church three miles north of Dawson in the early morning on Monday.

He identified them as Glenn Roland, 55; his son Melvin Earl Roland, 21; Marvin Allen Milner, 31; and a 16-year-old whose name was withheld in accordance with Georgia juvenile laws.

The quartet was spotted in a car near the church after the fire, the FBI said. Later they were picked up by agents who have been investigating three other churches burned to the ground in recent weeks and the firing of shots into several Negro homes.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said his agents questioned the four persons and then turned them over to Georgia authorities because there was no evidence of federal violations.

Meeting Thursday To Discuss Adult Education Classes

For residents of Wards 4, 5 and 6 who may find it easier to attend Adult Education classes the Board of Education will meet at Kingston High School, Raphael Klein, director of Adult Education, today announced a meeting would be held on Thursday, Sept. 20, at 8 p. m. at School No. 3, to discuss the matter.

For those who desire to enroll in basic English, reading and writing and in sewing and typewriting courses, it is planned to hold classes at School No. 3. This plan was carried out last year for those of the three wards who found it more convenient to reach School No. 3.

At the meeting Thursday night the program will be discussed and a decision will be made as to what evening classes are desired and should be held at the school.

Kingston Teacher Is Named Director of Youth Center

FREDERICK J. GREEN

Frederick J. Green, an English teacher at the Myron J. Michael School in Kingston, has been appointed director of the Woodstock Youth Center.

He will assume duties on Oct. 1 and receive a salary of $2,500. Green holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Syracuse University, where he majored in speech and dramatic arts and was a minor in English, psychology and sociology. He was president of the Board's Head Dramatic Society and a member of the Speech Honorary Society. At present he is working on his Masters Degree in Education at State University College at New Paltz.

The 31-year-old teacher will bring a wealth of promotional and directing ability to his new Woodstock post. While at Syracuse University as part of exchange-curricular activities, he produced and directed for stage productions and television shows. He wrote radio scripts and acted in many leading roles and has had dramatic experience in stage, radio and television productions.

Promotional Expert

While with Station WONO-FM in Syracuse, he was announcer and assistant program director. He also produced and announced weekend shows; was responsible for the preparation of a monthly program guide, wrote promotion and commercial copy and was all-around assistant to the program director.

In the U. S. Navy, Green was producer-director of radio shows for the Armed Forces Radio Service; co-authored several dramatic radio scripts and was active as an actor-director in little theatre work.

Green will direct the accelerated program for teenagers at the Youth Center. A finance campaign is now under way to raise $4,500 to underwrite the Youth Center project for a season.

Booms Woodstock Potential for Big Resort Area

A suggestion that a concerted effort be made to develop Woodstock township as a resort area was advanced by Harry Cohen at the September meeting of the Woodstock Township Chamber of Commerce.

Cohen developed his proposal during a discussion on whether the Chamber should or should not attempt to bring new industry into the township.

The Chamber should encourage the building of more motels and hotels to encourage a larger influx of summer visitors and skiers in the winter. He said present motel accommodations are inadequate in the area.

Cohen said he also felt the Woodstock area has all the natural facilities to compete with larger areas, like Sullivan County, to compete for the summer tourist dollar. He said the Sullivan area offered nothing in the cultural vein for visitors.

Kiki Godwin, co-editor of the Ulster County Townsman, generally supported Cohen's recommendations and said the Woodstock area is a superior location for a major hotel.

Webster Speaks

Benjamin L. Webster, chairman of the Planning Board, said that in any discussion about industry it should be remembered that Woodstock now has many "small" industries, such as the artists, weavers, craftsmen, etc. He noted the increased activity in arts and crafts and said these present tradesmen and others should be encouraged to expand.

Webster also proposed that any new industry should be the type to attract well-trained, educated people like engineers, scientists and allied technologists. This point of view was rebutted by Richard O. Langham, who said that taxes would become unbearable in a super-cultural community.

Cites Need for Women

During the discussion on industry, Anthony J. de Lizio said it was unfeasible for the Chamber to invite industry into the township until the present water supply and sewage system was improved. He said this was a must before the plan could proceed.

Frederick Dircks, Woodstock real estate dealer, admitted there was much concern about high taxation, but said, in reply to de Lizio's statement, that the new industries should take care of their own water and sewage. He also reiterated a previously proposed tax system whereby school taxes should be based on income and those who made more money should pay more taxes.

Warren Huty, in reply to a statement by J. C. van Rijn that there was no legal instrument to keep any kind of industry out of town, said he felt that most objectionable industries would not find a happy hunting ground in the Woodstock area. He said there was little likelihood of objectionable industries coming in and spoiling land.

William West, Chamber president, said all feelers for locations here should be investigated by a Chamber committee and a decision made after thorough study. Jack Citroen summed up the general feelings of the group when he said: "I guess we are all agreed that Woodstock needs some kind of industry."

Talk on Politics Heard by League

An interesting and informative talk on Practical Politics by Mrs. Frank Falknor was the highlight of the League of Women Voters' September meeting.

Mrs. Falknor urged all members and their guests to enroll in the political party of their choice. She stressed that only enrolled voters can make full use of their votes, since they can vote in primaries and caucuses, thereby helping to choose candidates placed on the ballot.

The LWV's annual membership tea meeting was held at St. Gregory's Church hall, with Mrs. Alvin Moscovitz, the new president, presiding over a short business meeting. During the refreshment hour, round table discussions were held, enabling member and guest to become better acquainted with each other and with the league program.

Vaccine Ruling Draws Ire of Its Originator

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Albert B. Sabin today described as unwarranted the U.S. Health Service recommendation that Type III oral polio vaccine be withheld from adults.

Sabin, originator of the vaccine, said the recommendation "must not be allowed to interfere with community programs which are our only hope for complete elimination of polio."

Arriving from England on the liner Queen Mary, Sabin told newsmen:

"The decision is based on a small number of coincidental polio-type illnesses, with no proof in any one of these cases that the Type III vaccine has been responsible for any one of the cases reported."

The Health Service made its recommendation Saturday against adult use of Type III Sabin vaccine after announcing that it confirmed cases of Type III polio provided sufficient evidence "to indicate that at least some of these cases have been caused by Type III vaccines."

While recommending against Type III vaccine for adults, the Health Service did urge using it for immunization programs for preschool and school-age children, and recommended continued use of Types I and II for everyone.

Several states decided against continued use of Type III vaccine, but other state and local officials adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

Rifle Cartridge Latest Clue to Mrs. Blair Slaying

BINGHAMTON, N. Y. (AP)—A spent cartridge from a .35-caliber rifle, the same type of weapon that killed Mrs. Iva Munson Sept. 10, is the latest clue to the slaying of Mrs. Clara M. Blair, who was last seen alive Sept. 9.

Philip Quinlivan, a 32-year-old former truck driver and handyman, is charged with first-degree murder in the Munson slaying. Investigators say he had admitted killing the 41-year-old mother of four in her isolated rural home near Windsor, 10 miles east of here.

Mrs. Blair, 46, and also the mother of four, was last reported seen with Quinlivan in Earlville, Madison County, where she lived. Her body was discovered Sunday on a dirt road in rugged, heavily wooded hill country of Southern Madison County.

Investigators said Mrs. Munson was shot twice in the head with a .35-caliber Winchester rifle, Lt. Harry Blaisdell of State Police Troop D said the spent cartridge found Monday near the spot where Mrs. Blair's body lay came from the same type of gun.

Dr. Michael Levine, a pathologist at Utica State Hospital, said Monday night that a preliminary examination of Mrs. Blair's body showed she had been shot once in the head and had suffered a fractured skull.

He said that, because of the badly decomposed condition of the body, it probably never would be determined whether Mrs. Blair had been raped.

Mrs. Blair and her husband were separated. Mrs. Munson's husband, Richard, 62, is a conductor for the Delaware & Hudson Railroad here.

Despite the apparent similarities in the two crimes, a legal technicality continued to delay the questioning of Quinlivan in the death of Mrs. Blair.

It's State Monopoly, Growing Fast

Kremlin Tells Banks What Loans to Make and to Whom

EDITOR'S NOTE—Following is the first of two articles giving some light on the Soviet banking practices.

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The banking name of Morgan—a symbol of capitalism to Americans—raises few eyebrows in Soviet financial circles.

At least Robert F. Hirt, now 35, who joined the J. P. Morgan bank in February 1951, reports no visible signs of interest or resentment among Moscow bankers when he mentioned his present job — assistant treasurer of the Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York, formed by a merger in April 1959 of the House of Morgan and the Guaranty.

Old Story-Secret

But Hirt and 17 other Americans, in Moscow last July for the International Banking School, did raise their own eyebrows at some of the Soviet banking practices. Mainly it was the old Soviet story—the cult of secrecy. If an American asked to see the balance sheet of the Soviet state bank, he was told, "It is available but not published." And that ended that.

Banking in the Soviet Union is a state monopoly with Kremlin officials telling the banks what loans they can make and to whom. But banking is a fast growing business there, the state bank's turnover of 415.2 billion rubles in 1961 was up 75 per cent in five years. Officially Moscow tags the ruble as worth $1.11.

Credit to Both Sides

Main business of the banking system, with the Gosbank—state bank—at its head, is to finance the production, distribution and sale of goods and services, granting credit to both suppliers and buyers. Capital investments are handled by an allied arm, the Stroi bank.

American banks do both of these things, too. Only here, the banks themselves decide to what factory or merchant they will lend, and at what interest rate, and what business expansion or modernization plan they will or won't finance.

I. D. Sher of the Moscow Institute of Finance explained the difference to the 250 bankers from 50 other nations attending the 15th annual session of the school.

In the Soviet Union, a central plan is drawn up by the Council of Ministers and a local bank only provides funds for expenses on the building of new and the enlargement or reconstruction of operating enterprises as envisaged in the plan.

Directed by Council

Both the Gosbank and the Stroi bank are completely under the direction of this Council of Ministers. And even beyond this council the final word lies with the planning council of the Supreme Soviet.

Hirt reports that the local banks in the Soviet Union do get in on the act early in the game, since drafting of plans often is initiated by local enterprises in consultation with the local branch of the Gosbank. Then the proposals go to the council, where they may or may not be fitted into the national plan. If they are, the loans can be made.

Transactions in Paper

Almost all of the banking system's transactions are in paper rather than in cash, whether with institutions or individuals. A. I. Kazantsev, a director of the Gosbank, says payments up to 10 rubles are made in cash.

Book entries account for the financing of state enterprises, co-operatives, trade unions and other public organizations. Bank acceptances constitute 80 per cent of all non-cash payments for materials and services. The banks also use another form familiar to Americans, letters of credit. These are under control of the bank and payment is made from funds specially deposited by the buyer of goods or services.

To Hirt and the other Americans, all of this was both familiar and strange because of the state domination and secrecy.

Lists Dutchess Price

Price to be paid by the proposed Dutchess County Water District to the city of Poughkeepsie for its treatment-pumping plant and distribution system is approximately $8,890,000, according to an appraisal completed by Day and Zimmerman, engineering consultants.

That figure was noted in a letter from county consulting engineers to Supervisor George Reid (R-LaGrange) chairman of the Dutchess County Water Agency. The engineers informed Reid the figure is $890,000 more than the $8,000,000 estimate of county consultants, Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade and Douglas and Goodkind and O'Dea reported a month ago.

OUR CONSTITUTION

Americans tend not to get very excited about such commemorative occasions as Constitution week, which we are celebrating again. Yet the U.S. Constitution is beyond doubt the biggest thing in their busy lives.

Furthermore, if we told its story as wisely and dramatically as it deserves to be told, it could be a very big thing in the minds of millions around the world who are searching for a better, fuller life.

Some of the elemental facts about this great document are astonishing. It was produced in four months by 55 men representing the less than four million Americans of that frontier era.

If you set aside the 10 original Bill of Rights amendments, the U.S. Constitution has been formally changed only 13 times in 175 years since its signing.

Thus the work those 55 men performed for some four million people is today serving the basic public needs of 185 million living in an industrial-scientific world the drafters could not have imagined.

Of the 13 real changes, six have to do with voting or other human rights. Right now another voting amendment, abolishing the poll tax as a voting requirement, is about to go to the rounds of the several states.

The focus on the area of human rights suggests, for one thing, that the Constitution's drafters were perhaps not as specific here as they might have been. The changes also reflect altering attitudes toward the rights and status of women and Negroes.

Yet constitutional historians seem to agree that at root the founders' frequent use of broadly general language is the key to our Constitution's durability.

Phrases like "Congress shall have power to regulate commerce . . . among the several states" have proved remarkably adaptable to many modern-day purposes of a growing country.

There is an important lesson here for aspiring peoples elsewhere who are trying to set themselves on an ambitious course.

We offer them a document which is a model in this regard: it permits energetic, forward-looking men to move in a changing society, free of binding rigidities imposed by a dead past.

But this still is perhaps not the real core of our constitutional treasure. Many students of government think its heart is its system of checks and balances which places powerful curbs on each of the three branches of government — executive, legislative, judicial.

To some of our bright young friends abroad, the Constitution might seem madly, madly vague as to the power limits of each branch.

That vagueness, say many constitutional experts, is the key. It allows a certain amount of advance and retreat across the fuzzy frontiers, without ever precipitating destructive collision.

No government on earth has ever devised a system of countervailing power more protective of human freedom. It is at once simple and sophisticated.

The Constitution is a document we can be proud to live by. And we should be continuously busy exporting its matchless precepts of liberty. No nation has anything better.

If you are an eligible voter residing in the City of Kingston and you know now that you will be unable to register on the regular registration days — October 5, 6, 12 and 13 — then you should take advantage of the opportunity afforded through central registration. In Kingston, personal registration is required. This means that unless you are registered you cannot cast your vote in the important general election on November 6.

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE DEVELOPMENT OF A POLICY

Yesterday, I gave the history of the Monroe Doctrine up to the Act of Havana in 1940 which led to the Organization of American States and the vitiation of the Doctrine.

Prior to this President Theodore Roosevelt extended the Monroe Doctrine to the instrument of moral sanction and police power: "Chronic wrongdoing, or an impotence which results in a general loosening of the ties of civilized society, may in America, as elsewhere, ultimately require intervention by some civilized nation, and in the Western Hemisphere the adherence of the United States to the Monroe Doctrine may force the United States, however reluctantly, in flagrant cases of such wrongdoing or impotence, to the exercise of an international police power."

The Act of Havana was a war measure designed to establish a barrier to German and Japanese activities in Latin America. When World War II was over, the Act stood and the United States was no longer free to pursue its own initiative. It had partners with whom it needed to consult. The Act of Havana was followed by Conferences at Rio de Janeiro, Bogota and other places, each of which reduced the American initiative.

The Rio de Janeiro Conference took place between January 15 and 28, 1942. Its ostensible object was to recommend to all 21 American Republics that they break off relations with all Axis powers. The Republics were encouraged to form a hemispheric defensive policy.

The two basic documents which altered the relationship of the United States and Latin America are the Charter of Bogota and the Treaty of Rio. The Chapultepec Meeting occurred in 1945; Rio in 1947; Bogota in 1948. These documents must be read together to understand what happened. The Charter of the Organization of American States (May 2, 1948) says in its first article: "The American States establish by this Charter the international organization that they have developed to achieve an order of peace and justice, to promote their solidarity, to strengthen their collaboration, and to defend their sovereignty, their territorial integrity and their independence . . ."

A. A. Berle summarizes its essential objectives as follows: "a. To strengthen the peace and security of the continent; "b. To prevent possible causes of difficulties and to ensure the pacific settlement of disputes that may arise among the Member States; "c. To provide for common action on the part of those States in the event of aggression; "d. To seek the solution of political, juridical and economic problems that may arise among them; and "e. To promote, by cooperative action, their economic, social and cultural development."

The Monroe Doctrine is knocked out by the Charter: "No State or group of States has the right to intervene, directly or indirectly, for any reason whatever, in the internal or external affairs of any other State. The foregoing principle prohibits not only armed force but also any other form of interference or attempted threat against the personality of the State or against its political, economic and cultural elements."

The Treaty of Rio de Janeiro does not affect the situation in Cuba. The article reads: "The High Contracting Parties agree that an armed attack by any State against an American State shall be considered as an attack against all the American States and, consequently, each one of the said Contracting Parties undertakes to assist in meeting the attack in the exercise of the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense recognized by Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations."

The Russians have not invaded Cuba; they were invited in by a Communist government. This is the technique which Soviet Russia has employed in Red China, Korea, Vietnam and many European countries. It is normal Communist technique. The West has always failed to meet the Communist use of this method for conquest because the West is bound by legalisms, which Soviet Russia ignores. In the United States we suffer from a doctrine which makes the world to be divided between Democracy and Communism; we must either support dictators who call themselves Democrats or the Communists. If the so-called Democratic dictators turn out to be Communists, as Castro has, it is still better than to have a dictator who is neither a Democrat nor a Communist. As stupid as this policy has proved to be in China, Hungary, East Germany, Indonesia, Poland and Cuba, it remains our policy.

Have a Healthy Suntan?—

There's No Such Animal

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.

Overexposure to sunlight is a problem to millions of persons the year 'round in these days of heavy resort travel.

There's an old saying that you can't get too much of a good thing. And certainly there are no better "good things" than parental love and sunlight. But recent studies indicate that we can get too much of both.

Take sunlight. Since the present relatively affluent life allows more time for travel and recreation, millions of us expose ourselves to intense sunlight in the course of outdoor activities. Many of us regard the degree of tanning or bronzing as an indicator of health. Nevertheless, skin specialists of Baylor University, in Houston, Tex., believe that sunlight exposure speeds the aging process of the skin, tends to invite skin cancers. An increasing number of outdoor addicts, male and female, are possessed of the weatherbeaten, coarse and leathery skin formerly seen only in farmers, sailors and others whose occupations required them to be exposed in the course of their daily labors.

Q—A neighbor who just returned from Europe tells us that an improved form of procaine injections is being successfully used for rejuvenation. He took the injections himself and feels much improved as did other men, some very famous, who took the injections at the same time. Would you advise taking these injections?

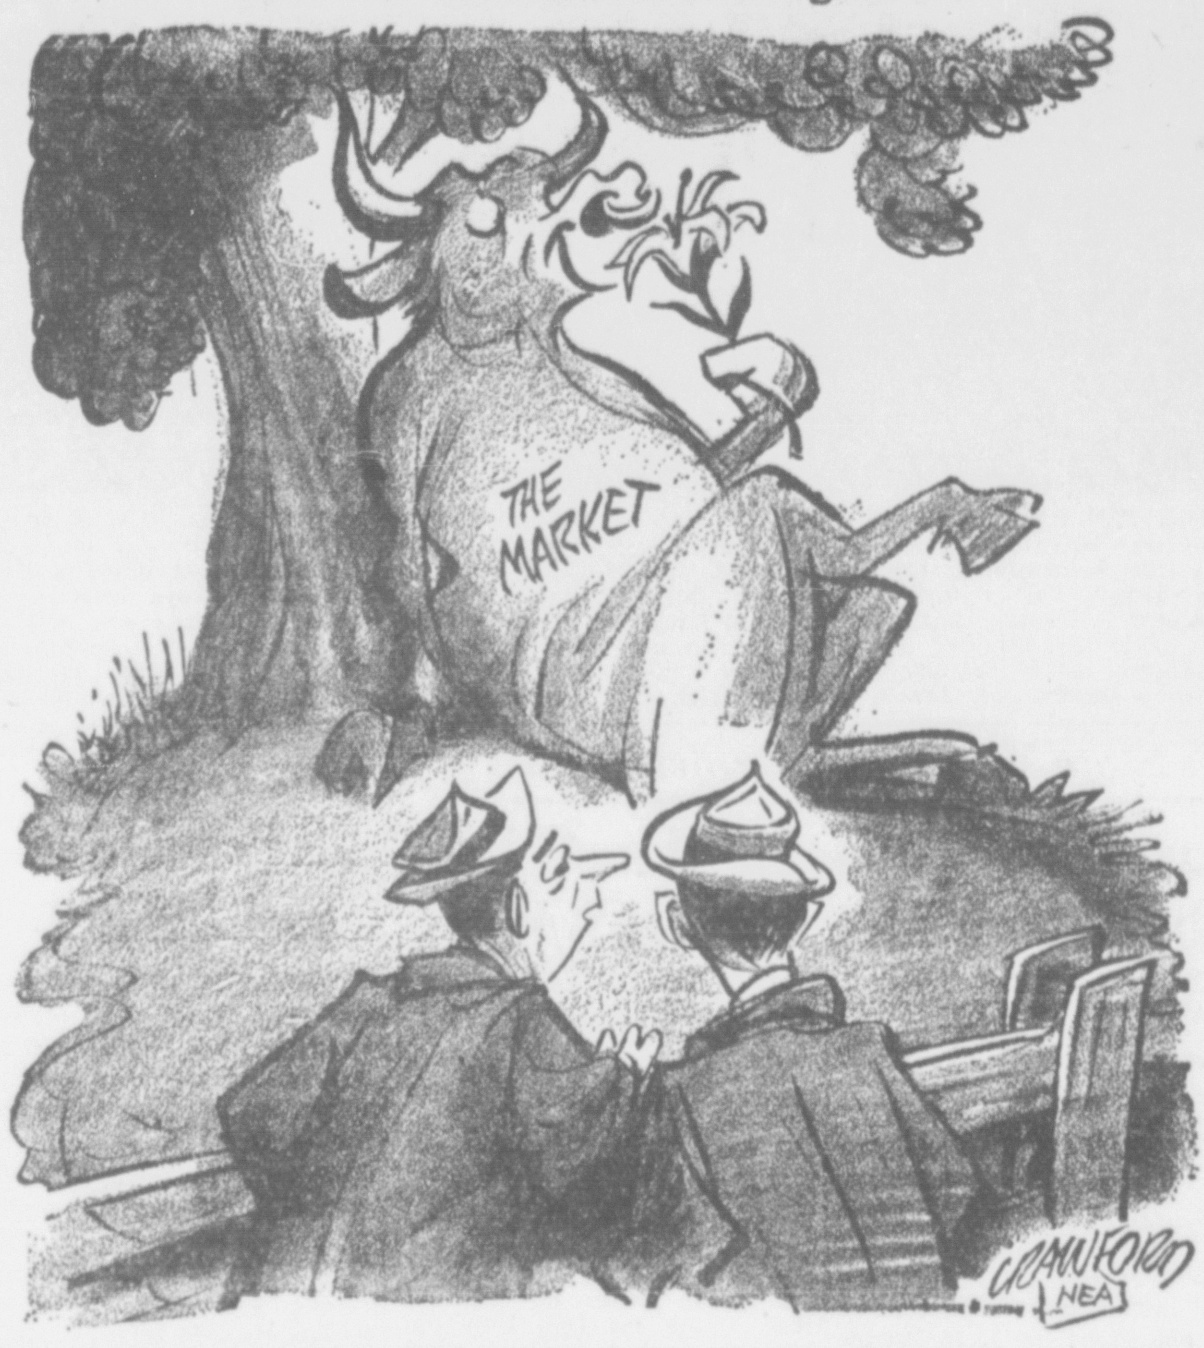

A—A trio of British physicians conducted separate studies on 100 normal or ailing aged persons who were given procaine injections. Their conclusions were that "procaine injections are of no value," that their use as rejuvenating agents is "unjustified."

Q—Our son has a weak eye muscle in his left eye. The eye specialist has recommended an operation to straighten his eyes. Are these operations safe? Do they correct the weakened eye muscles? Will they improve vision?

A—In the expert hands of an accredited eye specialist, the type of operation suggested to you for your son is safe and effective. You should understand, however, that the operation is not intended for the purpose of strengthening the weakened muscle but of balancing the various eye muscles which give us vision in depth. They have to be regarded at times like the reins held by a driver of a team of horses; a little tug in this direction, or a little tug in the other and to estimate the amount of the tug and its direction requires great judgment and skill.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

A principal reason why the Communist party in the United States has been able to stay in business is that the federal government has not been able to get at its source of funds.

AMERICAN Communist leader constantly claim that the party is broke. Government officials know that it is not, for it continues to print propaganda and stage organizing rallies.

Whenever the party gets in a pinch — to fight legal battles against government prosecution or to raise defense funds for Communists brought to trial — money is always forthcoming.

One of the few successful government efforts to tap Communist funds has been in the seizure of posted bond money when convicted Communists have jumped bail to avoid imprisonment.

THE MOST RECENT is late Communist spy Robert A. Soblen's forfeiture of $100,000 bond when he fled to Israel to escape life imprisonment. This bond consisted of $10,000 cash posted after his arrest in 1960, plus $30,000 more in cash and $60,000 in government bonds furnished by his non-Communist New York attorney.

Convicted spy Gerhard Eisler forfeited $23,000 bond when he fled the country on a Polish liner to avoid imprisonment.

Four of the 11 top U. S. Communist party officials convicted in 1951 forfeited $20,000 bail each when they fled to evade imprisonment. They were Gus Hall and Robert G. Thompson, who were later apprehended, Henry Winston and Gilbert Green who later surrendered. All served extended sentences.

But the $203,000 in forfeited bail is about all the government has collected.

For six years, United States Internal Revenue Service tried unsuccessfully to collect from the Communist party U.S.A. $381,544.83 in unpaid taxes and penalties on 1951 income.

To protect this claim, Department of Justice filed suit to collect the amount last March. Communist lawyers are fighting the case, now pending before United States Tax Court, with every petition they can dream up. A long action is in prospect.

IT IS CLAIMED that the Communist party, U. S. A., is a political association and that since income taxes are not collected from Republican, Democratic, Socialist or other parties, the Communists should also be exempt.

If this should be affirmed, it might subject the Communist party to prosecution for failure to report its finances to Congress. But this legal ditch has yet to be crossed.

Communist evasive legal tactics over the last six months show how the party blocks prosecution and ties up courts. Petitions filed by party counsel John J. Abt ask dismissal of the suit, claiming that the party has no taxable income, that expenses always exceed receipts, and that because of government harassment, the party kept only payroll records. It is also asserted that the suit seeks intolerable penalties for failure to keep books and that the court lacks jurisdiction. So far the court has denied all petitions.

In June the government subpoenaed Phil Bart as party treasurer and ordered him to produce party financial records. Bart, on court appearance, took the fifth amendment frequently but testified that he was only an acting financial official for about a year in 1956-57. He signed checks to pay party bills but he kept only daily cash book reports, which he submitted to Secretary Eugene Dennis.

THIS IS THE WAY the party operates. There are no records of initiation fees and dues, which are designated as donations to conceal the identity of party members.

Additional funds are obtained by sale of tickets to party functions and defense fund rallies. But these provide only a small part of the party's income.

The big money comes from party angels, its wealthy members or sympathizers and the front organizations who turn over their collections on a fairly regular basis. Funds from foreign sources are unknown to the government and closely held by top officials.

Until the government can crack and expose these sources, it is almost helpless in cutting off party finances.

Will UN Assist or Hinder
The Effort to Free Cuba?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Did President Kennedy make an error of fact at his news conference on Sept. 13, or did he purposely make a significant revelation which has escaped general attention? At that time he read a prepared statement declaring that technical and military personnel of the Soviet Union moved into Cuba in 1958 "at the invitation of the Cuban government."

Did the Batista government, which was in power at that time and, was anti-Communist, invite the Communists into Cuba? The Batista government did not collapse until January, 1959, when Fidel Castro assumed the reins of government.

Mr. Kennedy's prepared statement to the press read as follows:

"Ever since communism moved into Cuba in 1958, Soviet technical and military personnel have moved steadily into the island in increasing numbers at the invitation of the Cuban government."

It doesn't seem plausible that the government of Batista would have invited into Cuba Soviet technical and military personnel at any time during the year 1958. It could be that the Soviets were already assisting the Castro revolutionists to overthrow the Batista regime, and that this amounted to a direct military intervention against the constituted government. If this is proved to have been true, then the Soviets not only violated the Monroe Doctrine, but actually violated the sovereignty of Cuba. Yet it happened, wouldn't Batista have known it, and if he did, why didn't he protest?

Record Is Cited

The Castro government took over on Jan. 1, 1959, and was given diplomatic recognition by the United States on Jan. 7. If there had been any evidence of the sending of Soviet technical and military personnel into Cuba, American government would never have recognized the Castro government when it did.

The published record, however, shows that the arms buildup in Cuba by the Soviets really started, not in 1958 as Mr. Kennedy said, but in February, 1960, when Anastas I. Mikoyan, First Premier of the Soviet Union, visited Havana and declared that the U.S.S.R. was willing to sell military planes to Cuba if the latter requested them. A commercial agreement to buy Cuban sugar was announced a few days later, but no reference was made to military purchases.

But on Aug. 29, 1960, the Foreign Ministers of the Organization of American States in their meeting in San Jose, Costa Rica, took note of the Soviet threat and voted unanimous approval of a declaration condemning intervention or the threat of intervention by an extra-continental power in the affairs of the American republics. The resolution rejected "the attempt of the Sino-Soviet powers to make use of the political, economic or social situation of any American state."

While Cuba wasn't mentioned in the resolution, Christian A. Herter, U. S. Secretary of State at the time, said the declaration by the OAS was a "clear indictment of the Castro government of Cuba" for the "role it has played in furthering the Sino-Soviet effort of intervention into this hemisphere."

The buildup continued to such an extent that on Oct. 20, 1960, the U. S. ambassador to Cuba, Philip W. Bonal, was officially recalled. On that same day, it was announced that the U. S. had ordered an immediate embargo on most exports to Cuba, including a ban on the chartering of American ships for Cuban trade.

Then, on Oct. 28, 1960, the U. S. in a note to the Organization of American States, charged that Cuba had "been receiving substantial quantities of arms and munitions of military technicians" from the Soviet bloc. The note requested that a six-nation OAS committee investigate the Soviet shipments, and declared:

"With the notorious assistance of extra-continental powers, specifically those of the Soviet bloc, Cuba is expanding rapidly its capacity to give armed support to the spread of its revolution in other parts of the Americas."

UN Debate Recalled

The August, 1960, meeting of the OAS was preceded by a spirited debate in the Security Council of the United Nations, with which body the Castro government had filed a protest against the cut in Cuba's sugar quota by the U. S. and charging the Washington government with "aggressive acts." Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev, addressing the American delegation, said:

"Do not touch Cuba. Leave Cuba alone. Let it do what it deems proper in its own country, and do not threaten Cuba with your might because other countries also have much might."

"Do not touch us," replied U. S. ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. "Do not touch those with whom we are tied. Do not seek to extend Communist imperialism."

The charter of the UN specifically recognizes "regional arrangements or agencies" and authorizes such "activities" as are "consistent with the purposes and principles of the organization." One of the procedures which the UN Security Council may authorize is the imposition of a blockade "by air, sea or land forces."

If the OAS really set to act now in a collective sense, using force if necessary, to rid Cuba of the military contingent of the Soviets? A test may soon arise between the OAS and the Security Council of the UN. This may settle the question of whether UN will frustrate or support action taken under the Monroe Doctrine or under Article 51 of the Charter, which supposedly permits collective action to be initiated by a regional association of nations in defense of their regional interests.

MacArthur Plays Itinerant Writer In ABC TV Series

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — James MacArthur, who followed in the footsteps of his famous mother, Helen Hayes, is making a stab at portraying the profession in which his father found fame.

Jim, a sandy-haired 24, plays the role of an itinerant writer in a television series ABC is filming, "Postmark: Jim Fletcher."

Jim's father, you'll remember, was the late newspaper-playwright Charles MacArthur, who immortalized the newspaper business' more rollicking side with his play "Front Page."

"There won't be much similarity between the kind of writer I'm supposed to be and the Chicago newspaper days of my father," Jim said. "That kind of journalism really doesn't exist anymore."

"Reporting is different from those days," Jim said. "We have a different set of values, a different way of life."

"A story that might have seemed funny and sensational in those days might be very serious today."

In "Postmark," Jim plays the son of a famous war correspondent killed in World War II, who wants to follow in his father's footsteps.

"In the opening segment, I try to get a job on a magazine with my dad's old editor. He tells me I can't write about life from a little room. Why don't I go out and see what life's all about?"

"So that's the idea. I travel around the country, turn up stories and send them to the magazine."

"We're just in the pilot stage with the show, but ABC has a lot of faith in it. It looks like it should go. I sure hope it does. I think it will give me a lot more time at home."

Jim and his wife, Joyce, have just bought a three-bedroom Connecticut farmhouse-type home on a acre and a half in the San Fernando Valley. They'll move in next month with their 2-year-old son, Charlie.

"With that new house, I'll have to stay employed," Jim said with a grin.

He doesn't have any real worries. Jim has finished three movies this year—"The Interns," "To Be a Man," with Van Heflin and Rita Moreno, and "Spencer's Mountain," in which he co-stars with Henry Fonda and Maureen O'Hara.

"Sure, my parents' reputation helped me at first. But you have to make it on your own in the long run," he said.

The third family contest was in 1960 when President Kennedy's victory was a defeat for the Republican ticket on which the former U.N. ambassador was the nominee for vice president.

By CORNELIUS F. HURLEY

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts voters decide today whether another Kennedy will run against another Lodge in another round of a political feud between the two families over the same seat in the U.S. Senate.

Edward M. Kennedy, youngest brother of President John F. Kennedy, is running for the Democratic nomination in today's Massachusetts party primaries.

George Cabot Lodge seeks the Republican nomination. He is a son of Henry Cabot Lodge, who held the seat at stake from 1947 until John F. Kennedy won it in 1962.

Kennedy and Lodge won the endorsements of their party conventions in June, over the same men who are their primary rivals.

Edward J. McCormack Jr., a nephew of Speaker of the House John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, opposes Kennedy.

Rep. Laurence Curtis, R-Mass., is running against Lodge. Curtis' congressional district was eliminated in this year's reapportionment, which cut the delegation from 14 to 12.

The vote is expected to set a record, topping 1 million.

Polls open at various hours and close at 6 or 7 p.m.

Age and experience have been prime issues in both contests.

Kennedy turned 30, minimum age for a senator, last Feb. 22 just before he announced his candidacy for the seat his brother vacated on winning the presidency in 1960.

McCormack, 39 last month, is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy. He has stressed his record of holding public office for the last 10 years.

On the Republican side, Curtis, 60, cited his experience in city, state and national office as a contrast to Lodge's first try for public office. Lodge is 35.

The Kennedy-Lodge feud for the Senate seat goes back to 1916 when Lodge's great-grandfather, Henry Cabot Lodge, defeated John F. Honey Fitz Fitzgerald, the President's grandfather, for the Senate.

Motions in Dutchess

Fund Charge Due 25th

Motions on behalf of William P. Reimuth, 37, Metzgar Road, Red Hook, accused of misappropriating $2,100 of the Christian Lodge of Odd Fellows funds, Red Hook, are scheduled to be submitted in Dutchess County Court, Sept. 25.

Reimuth was indicted on a grand larceny charge. He previously pleaded innocent. The defendant was arrested July 12 by Deputy Sheriffs Charles Borchers and Albert Traver.

Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan said Reimuth was accused of collecting rents from residents in the lodge building, 33 Market Street, Red Hook, while a lodge trustee, and misappropriating the money to his own use in 1961.

Edward M. Kennedy, youngest brother of President John F. Kennedy, is running for the Democratic nomination in today's Massachusetts party primaries.

George Cabot Lodge seeks the Republican nomination. He is a son of Henry Cabot Lodge, who held the seat at stake from 1947 until John F. Kennedy won it in 1962.

Kennedy and Lodge won the endorsements of their party conventions in June, over the same men who are their primary rivals.

Edward J. McCormack Jr., a nephew of Speaker of the House John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, opposes Kennedy.

Rep. Laurence Curtis, R-Mass., is running against Lodge. Curtis' congressional district was eliminated in this year's reapportionment, which cut the delegation from 14 to 12.

The vote is expected to set a record, topping 1 million.

Polls open at various hours and close at 6 or 7 p.m.

Age and experience have been prime issues in both contests.

Kennedy turned 30, minimum age for a senator, last Feb. 22 just before he announced his candidacy for the seat his brother vacated on winning the presidency in 1960.

McCormack, 39 last month, is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy. He has stressed his record of holding public office for the last 10 years.

On the Republican side, Curtis, 60, cited his experience in city, state and national office as a contrast to Lodge's first try for public office. Lodge is 35.

The Kennedy-Lodge feud for the Senate seat goes back to 1916 when Lodge's great-grandfather, Henry Cabot Lodge, defeated John F. Honey Fitz Fitzgerald, the President's grandfather, for the Senate.

The second round was the 1962 election when John Fitzgerald Kennedy evened the score by turning the younger Henry Cabot Lodge, later U.S. ambassador to the U.N., out of the seat.

The steels remained indifferent to news of a recovery in steel industry operations to the highest level since mid-May.

Most of the auto stocks were unchanged, showing no further response to encouraging sales figures.

The trend among nonferrous metals, airlines, tobaccos, and drugs was unchanged to lower.

The trend was mostly higher on the American Stock Exchange. Gains were narrow.

What is a stock broker really like?

Fact vs. fiction

Are you planning to invest in stocks or bonds? Then you may be thinking about your first trip to a broker's office. Many people don't know what to expect. And a good deal of what they do expect often turns out to be fiction. Check yourself on these key points:

Fiction: Brokers aren't interested unless you've got lots of money.

Fact: A great number of investors, especially beginners, are small investors. So don't let that bother you.

Fiction: Brokers want you to plunge for all you've got.

Fact: Not so. A good broker does not want you to get in over your head. The best way he can keep you as a customer is to put your interest first. Before you invest, allow for living expenses and emergencies, then tell him how much you can consider to start your program.

Perhaps you'll prefer to invest systematically on a budget. The Monthly Investment Plan of Member Firms of the New York Stock Exchange permits you to invest with as little as $40 every three months.

Fiction: Brokers have a few pet stocks they want you to buy. Fact: A good broker will be glad to suggest stocks he thinks will fit your personal goals.

Some people seek extra income through dividends. Others set a goal of long-range growth in the value of their stock. Still others aim for some combination of the two. And some prefer the greater safety of principal and stability of income which some bonds offer.

Fiction: Brokers just play their hunches.

Fact: Facts, not hunches, should be the basis of a sensible recommendation.

Nobody can know all the facts, and no one can tell how a company will fare. There are always risks in investment. Prices go up and down. But your broker expects you to want to know about a company's past performance—sales, profits, dividend record. And, after considering many factors, you can decide what the company's prospects appear to be.

Fiction: All brokers are alike.

Fact: Far from it. Registered Representatives in Member Firms, for instance, have had to meet the requirements of the New York Stock Exchange for knowledge of investing.

Understanding your broker, knowing what's fact and what's fiction, can help you proceed in a practical and sound way when you're ready to invest. You're always welcome in a local Member Firm office.

Rebuke May Get Senate Action on Trade Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate—after a tongue lashing for its faltering start—plans to get down to business today on President Kennedy's trade expansion bill.

Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Senate Republican leader, said that his side would be ready to call up its amendments and get them voted on promptly.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, clearly unhappy over lack of progress in the first day of debate Monday, adjourned the Senate after only four hours.

"It's not a very heartening spectacle," he said, "to see the world's most deliberative body making a spectacle of itself."

This rebuke came after eight quorum calls had been necessary to fill in the time while unsuccessful efforts were made to get

CS Ass'n to Meet

The regular monthly meeting of Ulster County Chapter, Civil Service Employees Association, will be held Monday, Sept. 24, at 8 p. m. in the American Legion building, West O'Reilly Street.

Senators to the floor to present amendments, or even to make speeches.

Republicans denied they were seeking to stall, however, and said the bill as revised in the Senate Finance Committee had become available only as the session began. They said several hours were needed just for the technical task of drafting amendments to fit into the new text.

Dirksen told a reporter that the first amendment likely would be the one on which foes of the bill hope to roll up their biggest vote.

The proposal would knock out the adjustment assistance section of the bill, a new feature of trade legislation strongly urged by Kennedy. Under it, a variety of special aids could be given industries and workers harmed by import competition.

Flink Says His Life Almost Same As Counterspy

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Richard L. Flink, 27-year-old Republican state Assembly candidate whose disclosures led to spy charges against two Russian U. N. workers, said Monday night that he lived an almost normal life during his two years as an FBI counterspy.

Flink is here for the GOP state convention, which opened today. Federal investigators said Flink, now a Queens attorney, was approached by Yuri A. Mishukov and Yuri Zaitsev in 1959 and was paid to gather political information for the Soviets. Flink at the time was working for his masters degree at New York University. Flink pretended to go along with the Russians and contacted the FBI. He was told to play along, which he did for two years.

Dutch Waste No Time in Leaving West New Guinea

HOLLANDIA, West New Guinea (AP)—The Dutch are pulling out as fast as they can from West New Guinea—their last colonial territory of the once great Dutch East Indies.

There is no panic, but they leave with a mixture of emotions—deep regret, sadness, relief and some bitterness.

As one Dutch trader said: "We knew we had to leave sooner or later. But it is always sad when you are actually faced with leaving. Our role in this part of the world has been played out. We have reached the end of the road."

This tropical territory astride the equator with most of its 161,000 square miles consisting of dense jungles, coastal swamps and undeveloped lands, will be transferred from the Netherlands to a U.N. administration for a seven-month interim period Oct. 1. Next May 1 Indonesia takes over.

Native Papuans in the central highlands of this California-sized territory still live in the stone age and have little or no contact with white men.

Since the Dutch-Indonesian cease-fire on Aug. 13, the departure of women and children has been accelerated. Many dependents of Dutch officials began leaving more than a year ago.

when the Indonesians threatened military action to recover what they claimed to be part of the former Dutch East Indies. Of a total Dutch population of about 16,000, only 400 to 500 will remain after Oct. 1. Most of these are Dutch officials who plan to be home by Christmas.

Stresses Research Value

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — "The struggle to conquer cystic fibrosis is deserving of the widest public support for research, education and treatment," Gov. Rockefeller says.

In a proclamation Monday, he set Sept. 24-30 as "Cystic Fibrosis Week" in New York State.

The great 200-inch telescope of Palomar Observatory, Calif., was named in honor of Dr. George Hale, American astronomer.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

Bert and Harry Piel. Remember?

The checkered-vested Bert and his more conservative brother, who once managed—and spoke for—the Piel Company . . . have you ever wondered what happened to them?

Well, one day back in 1960 the Piel Company hired an efficiency expert. E. Gordon Gibbs was his name, and his commission was to look over the Piel brewing operation and suggest ways of making it more efficient.

Ousted at 1960 Meeting

No one was prepared to hear the report he made at the 1960 Piel directors' meeting. It remains one of the most controversial proposals in business history. Piel's biggest millstones, he said, are its two spokesmen, President Bert and Secretary Harry Piel. Not only did he deem it undignified for company executives to parade themselves around like side-show performers, but he seriously questioned their selling efficiency. "The days of flamboyant personal street-corner selling are over," Gibbs said. "To sell beer in today's market Piel must use today's sales methods. The simple fact is that Piel cannot afford the luxury of Bert and Harry any longer."

No Defense Offered

Well, there it was. Bert Piel, a proud man, did not feel he had to defend his record, which he held to be self-evidently excellent. He called for an immediate vote on the issue. The directors, possibly swayed by the glib Gibbs, possibly confused by Bert's silence, voted to adopt the Gibbs proposal by the margin of one vote. Bert and Harry could retain their company offices, but they could not be spokesmen any longer.

Bert wouldn't hear of any such arrangement. For thirty years, he and Harry had given themselves completely to the brewing and selling of Piel. Now they were paid with rejection. Well then, let them have a try at it Gibbs' way. Bert and Harry handed in their resignations and retreated to their summer home on Lake Winnepesaukee to wait.

E. Gordon Gibbs was hired to direct Piel advertising. The Piel commercials you've been seeing for the past two years have been done at his direction.

Piel Brothers Wait

Meanwhile, Bert and Harry wait. It's obvious that while Gibbs is around, Piel will never call them back. There's only one voice that can summon them back now—yours.

Do you want them back?

The time to act is now!

September AAUW Meeting Is Held; Dr. Robbins Speaks

Dr. Harold Hope Robbins of New York and Saugerties was guest speaker at the annual September dinner meeting of the American Association of University Women, Kingston Branch, on Tuesday, Sept. 11. The organization resumed monthly meetings with dinner and special program at the Skytop Restaurant, under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Buck, Branch president. Plans for study group activities were outlined and meeting dates were established.

The noted scholar and author, Dr. Robbins, was born and educated in England, taking his undergraduate work at the University of Liverpool, and earning a PhD. at Cambridge University. His major interest is Medieval and Renaissance England, and he has published over seventy articles in periodicals and journals, beside his many books.

Speaking on the topic, "Art, Society, and the Great Tradition", Dr. Robbins reviewed the interrelationship between artist and society. Prevailing literary and art forms of the time and place where an artist lives to a great extent predetermine the form of expression he will choose. Thus, Shakespeare, "without even debating which vehicle he should use to convey his thoughts, instinctively turned to drama and blank verse." These influences show the culmination of centuries of development, and are not the product of chance. At any time . . . "men with something to say . . . naturally used the available art forms."

"Just as society conditions the artist," continued Dr. Robbins, "so does the artist condition society" in a continuous reciprocal wave. "Every artist has to recreate his vision of the world in his own terms. . . . and in so doing, his contribution to society, together with those of others, comprises a definitely creative influence on the society, which then is different from the way he found it.

The artist's presentation of life's problems lies either in the major or minor tradition. The minor tradition, called Literature of Direction, "seeks to influence its readers directly and to change their ideas," but in so doing, the moral outweighs the fable. The major tradition, the Literature of Permanence, "conceives a humanist tradition which makes man the center of things. Its writers 'are the eyes and ears and lips of man's conscience,' and try to show that 'a man's reach should exceed his grasp.'"

Dr. Robbins lamented the overconcern of most contemporary artists with their medium of expression, rather than with what they have to say. "By absorption in technique, the poet withdraws from people and substitutes an aspect for the whole vision." Often experimental efforts are exhibited as final art products, when they should serve only as much needed periods for development of the artist, and should be done in private for his own sake. All serious writers and artists are helping mold, change and perpetuate the tradition by utilizing the painstaking minor achievements of many generations, accepting and rejecting what is of artistic value to them.

Dr. Robbins holds the distinction of being one of seven Americans to be named as fellow of the Royal Society of Literature. He has also been honored by the Guggenheim Institute and the Commonwealth Fund of America with fellowships.

The October business meeting, to be held at the George Washington School at 8 p. m., will be open to the public. Mrs. Lloyd E. LeFever will explain her part as a trustee of the Ulster County Community College, still in the planning stages. Mrs. LeFever, a graduate of Wellesley College, is a member of the Kingston Branch of AAUW. Other speakers scheduled for the winter months include Dr. Lydell, on politics, and Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom. The meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month in the George Washington Library, unless otherwise published.

AAUW Study Groups are open to any interested women. The International Relations Group meets the fourth Monday of each month. Mrs. Arthur Lessor is

Plans for Philharmonic Season Get Underway At Board Meeting Held Here; Auditions Open

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of Kingston Council, Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, Claude Monteux, musical director and conductor of the Philharmonic, said, "this will be the most exciting musical season we have ever had. I have thrown caution to the winds in planning the programs, which include some of the biggest works the orchestra has ever performed. The orchestra is finally ready to tackle the imposing masterpieces we want to play."

The Philharmonic orchestra has been expanded to 70 pieces and is classified by celebrated musical authorities as the fourth finest in New York State, following the prestigious Philharmonic orchestras of New York City, Rochester, and Buffalo.

Leo Kilcoyne, president of the Kingston Council, stated this high quality is maintained through the efforts of volunteer workers without the expenses of a paid executive staff, so that funds collected are used for additional rehearsals and acquiring outstanding guest artists.

The series of three concerts to be given in Kingston will feature as guest soloists William Warfield, Isaac Stern, and Ania Dorfmann. Of additional interest to local residents will be the performance of a piece by A. H. Schimmerling, noted composer who resides in Woodstock.

Since tickets for the Philharmonic concerts are sold by subscription to the three concerts, Mr. Kilcoyne urged members to contact as many interested people as possible, particularly during the campaign week of October 1-8. Those wishing to subscribe prior to the official campaign week may write to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, Box No. 1, Uptown P.O., Kingston.

The board accepted with regret the resignation of George Baron, business manager, who has been transferred out of the area. Stephen E. Huben of Rosendale has agreed to accept that position.

Plans for this year's subscription campaign were reported by Matthew Hasbrouck Jr., Stone Ridge; Mrs. Robert Mac Kinnon of Kingston outlined the in-school concert program; Mrs. Charles Ronder of Kingston was named as chairman of the seating committee; Mrs. Herbert Johnson of Kingston was announced chairman of special donations committee and Mrs. George Berk of Kingston reported on publicity plans.

According to Peter McComb, president of the Tri-County Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, there are openings in the orchestra for violinists, violists, and double bass players. Claude Monteux is holding auditions in his home at 30 Garfield Place, Poughkeepsie, now until rehearsals begin on September 24. Musicians who wish to be auditioned should contact James Coover, personnel manager of the Philharmonic orchestra and also music librarian of Vassar College. He may be reached at his home or at his Vassar College office. Hudson Valley orchestra members are paid and Mr. Monteux sets high professional standards for their performance. The orchestra will give 12 full orchestra concerts during the season: six in Poughkeepsie, three in Kingston, and three in Newburgh. "We have six wonderful, well-known guest artists coming to perform with us this year," Mr. Monteux said. "Now we want to make our orchestra better than it has ever been before."

Man's Condition Improves; Burned In Gas Explosion

The condition of Victor Albright, 22 of Colonial Gardens, who was severely burned in a gasoline explosion on Rosendale Road Saturday afternoon, was slightly improved today and described as fair by Benedictine Hospital authorities.

Albright was burning rubbish in the backyard of his uncle, Victor Ricketson Sr., on the Rosendale Road, south of Kingston City line when the mishap occurred.

According to his mother, Mrs. Irving Albright of Lafayette Avenue, her son poured some gasoline from a two-gallon can on the fire to rekindle it, when the can exploded engulfing him in flames.

Albright's nephew ran to his aid and a bedspread was thrown around him to smother the flames. He was rushed to the hospital where he had been in serious condition.

His mother said he suffered first, second and third degree burns on his arm and body. He is a mechanic on the New York Central Railroad at Poughkeepsie and Beacon. The mishap occurred at about 3 p. m.

Which is heavier, wet or dry sand?

Dry sand is heavier, measure for measure, than wet sand—up to a certain percentage of moisture.

A cubic foot of average wet river sand weighs from twelve to fifteen pounds less than a cubic foot of the same sand when dry.

One who buys a cubic yard of damp sand will get less than one who buys an equal volume of dry sand.

When a specified quantity of concrete is required contractors fill a barrow level with dry sand, but they are permitted to heap the barrow with wet sand. Sand dampened moderately increases in volume out of all proportions to the amount of water added. Consequently any given measure of moist sand weighs less than the same measure of dry sand.

Whereupon father expressed delight at this evidence of juvenile economy, and incidentally handed Earnest a dime. Then it occurred to the parent to inquire how the dollar had been saved.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

Received an interesting letter from E. G. Johnston of 210 Division Street, Schenectady. It reads in part:

"I had the pleasure of talking with Frank Albrecht of Port Ewen a few weeks ago and he told me about the changes in Rondout. I have not seen Frank since Nov. 2nd, 1910. At that time he lived on Staple Street. He was one of the youngsters, who as I remember were making quite a racket outside of the house where my wife and I were married. His father had a grocery store, corner of Brewster Street and Broadway." (Justin J. and Frank W. Albrecht were grocers at 359 Broadway according to 1910 Directory.)

It seems Mr. Finley, now of Dumont, N. J., a former Kingstonian, who also writes to me now has renewed friendship with

Johnston, for he writes: "Mr. Finley sent me a number of clippings of your column and I am homesick for the old haunts and stores of the time between 1883 and 1906. I was born Oct. 9th, 1883 and left Rondout (Kingston) May 4th, 1906. One item I noted was the automobile which S. T. Quann started on Hone Street and through Forsyth Alley and stopped on Abess Street. How did it get from Hone Street to Union Street and into Forsyth Alley with someone at the wheel." (That is a long story.)

Johnston further writes: "I wonder if anybody now living in Rondout remembers, 'The Woman in Black' who wandered around the streets after dark and frightened the wits out of us kids." He wonders what happened to her, as she disappeared after a few weeks, and thought perhaps she got tired of her wanderings or was caught by the police. During our time there was talk about 'A Woman in Black,' and myth or real she certainly kept the youngsters indoors after dark. Those were the days of long dresses, veils and such and big hats, and many women dressed in black the year around.

Johnston further writes, "Another item about cutting ice on the creek. I saw a lot of this. I remember the ice house in Connelly (South Rondout) burning. There was a malt house on this spot after the remains of the ice house were cleared up." According to the 1858 Kingston-Rondout Directory loaned to me by O. A. Goodsell of 43 Crane Street, George F. Von Beck, who at the time was the proprietor of the Mansion House, also had a big brewery at South Rondout.

He writes further: "Speaking of skating on the creek, I had a lot of fun and a few bumps on the Rondout Creek. In an article of sometime back, I read where a young fellow was drowned at the point of the island docks near the D and H Canal Co.'s repair shops. If this is the one referred to, I saw it. The fellow's name was Will Tongue whose father had a grocery store at Mill Street and Broadway. Will and I got on the ice at what was known as Uncle Jake's Corner, Ravine and Abess Street at the same time. Will went out to the main channel and I took the inner slip. When I reached the point of the Island Dock, will was in the water and I saw him go down. The men from the boat yard got his body up in a very short time, but I was not on the ice very much longer. I do not recall the year. Guess I will have to stop as my hand is getting tired and shaky, more some other time. Yours for fond memories," concludes Edward G. Johnston, then he adds a P.S. "I almost forgot. Seeing D. Wetterhahn's grocery store mentioned, I wonder if anybody remembers Henry Ahlers' grocery store at Hone and Hunter Streets. I see in the 1910 listings: 'Frederick A. Ahlers grocer, 23 Hone Street.' Also Margaret B. Ahlers was a stenographer at Hutton Co. live at that address.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's a Man's World" is the title—and a thoroughly misleading one—of a gentle, preceptive series about three young men and a boy which had its premiere Monday night on NBC.

Peter Tewksbury, who created and produced the series, said recently he had a hard time explaining to his front office that he wanted to do his opening show about a 14-year-old boy who loses $32.

As a matter of fact, the plot is still impossible to explain, but the boy did lose $32 and its return serves to introduce the young stars in a happy, imaginative series about growing up.

The four lads, each a different type, are engaging and interesting actors. The show is a welcome change from idiot-inhabited situation comedies, psychotic murderers and cowtown shootouts.

The program, one surmises, will concern the problems of orphaned brothers, one of them working his way through a small Midwestern college, a fellow student—richer and more carefree—and finally, a Southern country boy, all living together in a shabby houseboat. It doesn't sound like much, but it's fresh and, if you'll pardon the expression, heartwarming.

"Saints and Sinners," another new NBC series bowing in Monday night, promises to be a fast-moving, taut action series built on a newspaper city room foundation.

The first episode concerned the abduction for ransom of a businessman. The drama was not so much the hunt as finding the person who tipped off a rival paper about the story, thereby endangering the kidnaped man's life.

Of course, there were the time-honored newspaper characters so beloved by fiction writers—the brash, talented young star reporter—well played by Nick Adams—the gruff but kindly editor, the colorful photographer, the broken-down rewrite man and, natch, the glamorous lady foreign correspondent.

But so far, not a dirty trench coat has loomed and, true to the producer's promise, nobody yelled "scoop." They did "tear up a

Recommended tonight: "Keefe Brussels's Variety Gardens," musical special, with Liberace and Beatrice Kay, CBS, 10-11.

STAGE ACTORS: This expression started and was used in church meetings as late as the 1900's. The trouper referred to are stage actors and the saying was used to denote the low esteem show people were regarded with by many people.

South's Bid Fixes Result

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The result of the next hand of the World Championship match depended on South's first bid.

America, sitting South, made an opening diamond bid. West overcalled with two spades and North bid three clubs. East and South passed and West went on to three spades. He didn't think that anyone would double him at that contract and he expected to get seven tricks out of his own hand.

He got his seven tricks plus East's ace of hearts to be down one for minus 50. North opened with a diamond lead and South continued the suit. West discarded a heart on the fourth and last diamond—if he had ruffed he would have been down two tricks.

His three spade bid was the right decision. North would have lost a maximum of four tricks at three clubs.

At the other table West opened with a one spade bid and after North and East passed, South reopened with a double. West bid two spades and North passed.

He had pretty good defense against spades and since South had passed originally, North decided a three club bid would be too dangerous.

West made two spades for a plus of 110 and a net gain for America of 160 points, or four International Match points.

KHS Gridders Scheduled to Debut Saturday at Suffern

Four Veterans To Form Nucleus Of '62 Squad

Four returning regulars, a few reserves and some promising newcomers figure to be in the starting lineup Saturday as Coach Bill Burke unveils his 1962 Kingston High football team. The locals will commence their eight-game schedule by meeting Suffern at 2 o'clock at the Rockland County gridiron.

End Paul Natale, guard Jack Lewis, center Bob Ploss and halfback Bob Kennedy are back from last year's team, which produced only a 3-4-1 record but which almost upset Middletown and then nipped Newburgh Free Academy on Thanksgiving Day.

The quartet of vets figures to start. Also slated to be in the starting lineup are tackle Larry Delaney, halfback Tom Auringer and fullback Guy Bush, all of whom saw action last season.

Battling Auringer for a half-back spot is Ricky Jackson, a stellar javayee performer. Wayne Platte and Bob Handley, a pair of newcomers, are trying for the guard slot opposite Lewis while Jim Plunkett and Jim Sexton are the two ends figuring to share the assignment opposite Natale.

Two junior quarterbacks—Paul Gruner and Richie Hart—are ready for the signal calling job. The only other doubtful position is at one tackle and Burke said there are several boys still in contention.

This year's club will be built around the four returning regulars. Lewis was an All-DUSO selection at guard and he's one of the top linemen around. Natale, hampered by injuries in 1961, is a hard-nosed performer and a great competitor. Ploss is a steady center and a good line-backer. Kennedy is blessed with speed.

Coach Burke and assistants Bill Hurley and Ron Cole put the club through a controlled scrimmage session Saturday against Highland. The team started poorly but was impressive in the last half.

Suffern figures to be a tough opener. The Rockland County team, coached by Nick Mottola, won a 6-0 verdict at Kingston last year. Back from that squad are tackle Jim MacRobbie, end Carmine Powell, guard Lee George, quarterback Ned Preple and halfback Dick Lyon.

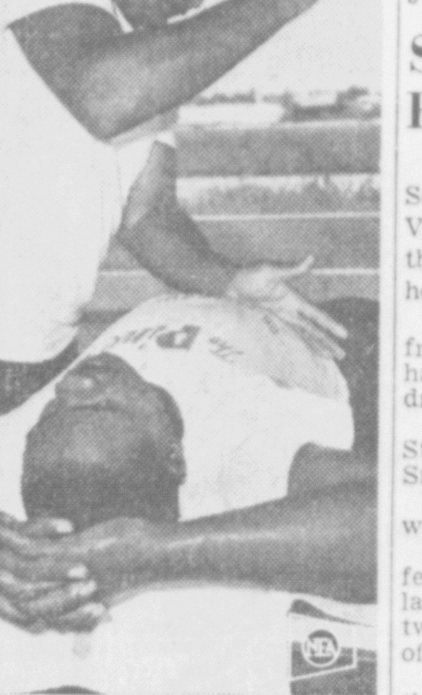

The complete KHS schedule:

Giants Bow To Bucs, Hopes Fade

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It may be that those fleet Los Angeles Dodgers have been slowed down a bit in their sprint for the National League pennant. But the San Francisco Giants, on a season-long treadmill away from home, are not doing any catching up.

Behind the masterful five-hit pitching of Warren Spahn, the Milwaukee Braves cooled off the Dodgers 2-1 Monday night, dealing the front runners their second straight loss after a seven-game winning spree.

But at Pittsburgh, Elmo Plaskett made his first major league hit a three-run homer and Tom Sturdivant threw a seven-hitter as the Pirates whipped the Giants, 5-2. It was the Giants' fourth successive loss to Pittsburgh and their sixth setback in a row since flying out of San Francisco on the wings of a seven-victory string a week ago.

So, the Dodgers remain four games ahead of San Francisco, with the idle Cincinnati Reds now 5½ back in third. Los Angeles and San Francisco each have six home and five road games to go, while Cincinnati has four at home and six away.

In Monday's only other game, homers by Billy Ott and Ernie Banks in a five-run seventh inning powered the Chicago Cubs over St. Louis 8-4.

There were no Monday games in the American League, but that race resumes today. In key action, the pacesetter New York Yankees play at Washington tonight and Minnesota's runnerup Twins three games behind, entertain Detroit this afternoon. Also tonight, Early Wynn of Chicago guns for his 300th career victory when the White Sox take on Boston.

15th Victory
Spahn, who has pitched in a lot of hard luck this season, had another mighty struggle against the Dodgers but finally succeeded in his fifth try for his 15th victory. The Braves jumped off to a 2-0 lead against Pete Richert in the second inning, then they blew other chances by stranding 11 men, including three in the second and seventh and two in the fifth.

Frank Howard's 29th homer brought the Dodgers their run with two out in the seventh; then they also failed to cash in on later opportunities. Ron Fairly drew a walk leading off the eighth and with one out, pinch runner Dick Tracewski tried to score on Maury Wills' double, only to be cut down easily on Frank Bolling's relay from Hank Aaron.

Left-hander Mike McCormick's wildness started the Giants down-hill. He hit Bob Skinner with a pitch and walked Bob Bailey prior to Plaskett's homer in the second and San Francisco never caught up. Roberto Clemente homered off McCormick in the third after Dick Groat's single.

The Cubs went into the last of the seventh trailing the Cardinals 4-3 but Ott quickly made things even against loser Ray Washburn with his first big league homer. Then with two aboard, Banks whacked his 35th of the season, and pitcher Dick Ellsworth later singled in the fifth run of the rally. Ellsworth went the distance allowing nine hits, including homers by Ken Boyer and Julio Gotay.

Stock Winner Set For National Race

The winner of the feature race Saturday night at the Lebanon Valley Speedway will represent the track in the 100-mile Langhorne Speedway on Oct. 14.

It's expected that many stars from other tracks will be on hand for the race, including hard driving Doug Garrison.

Also expected to see action are Stretch VanSteenburg, Don Smith and John Flach.

The first event will get underway at 8:30 p. m.

Garrison won his seventh feature race at Lebanon Valley last Saturday as he copped the twin trophy feature by a quarter of a lap over Link Pettit.

Ed Yonker of Ellenville was the winner for the fifth time at Ontario Speedway on Sunday. Second was Ray Anderson while Ben Stone finished third.

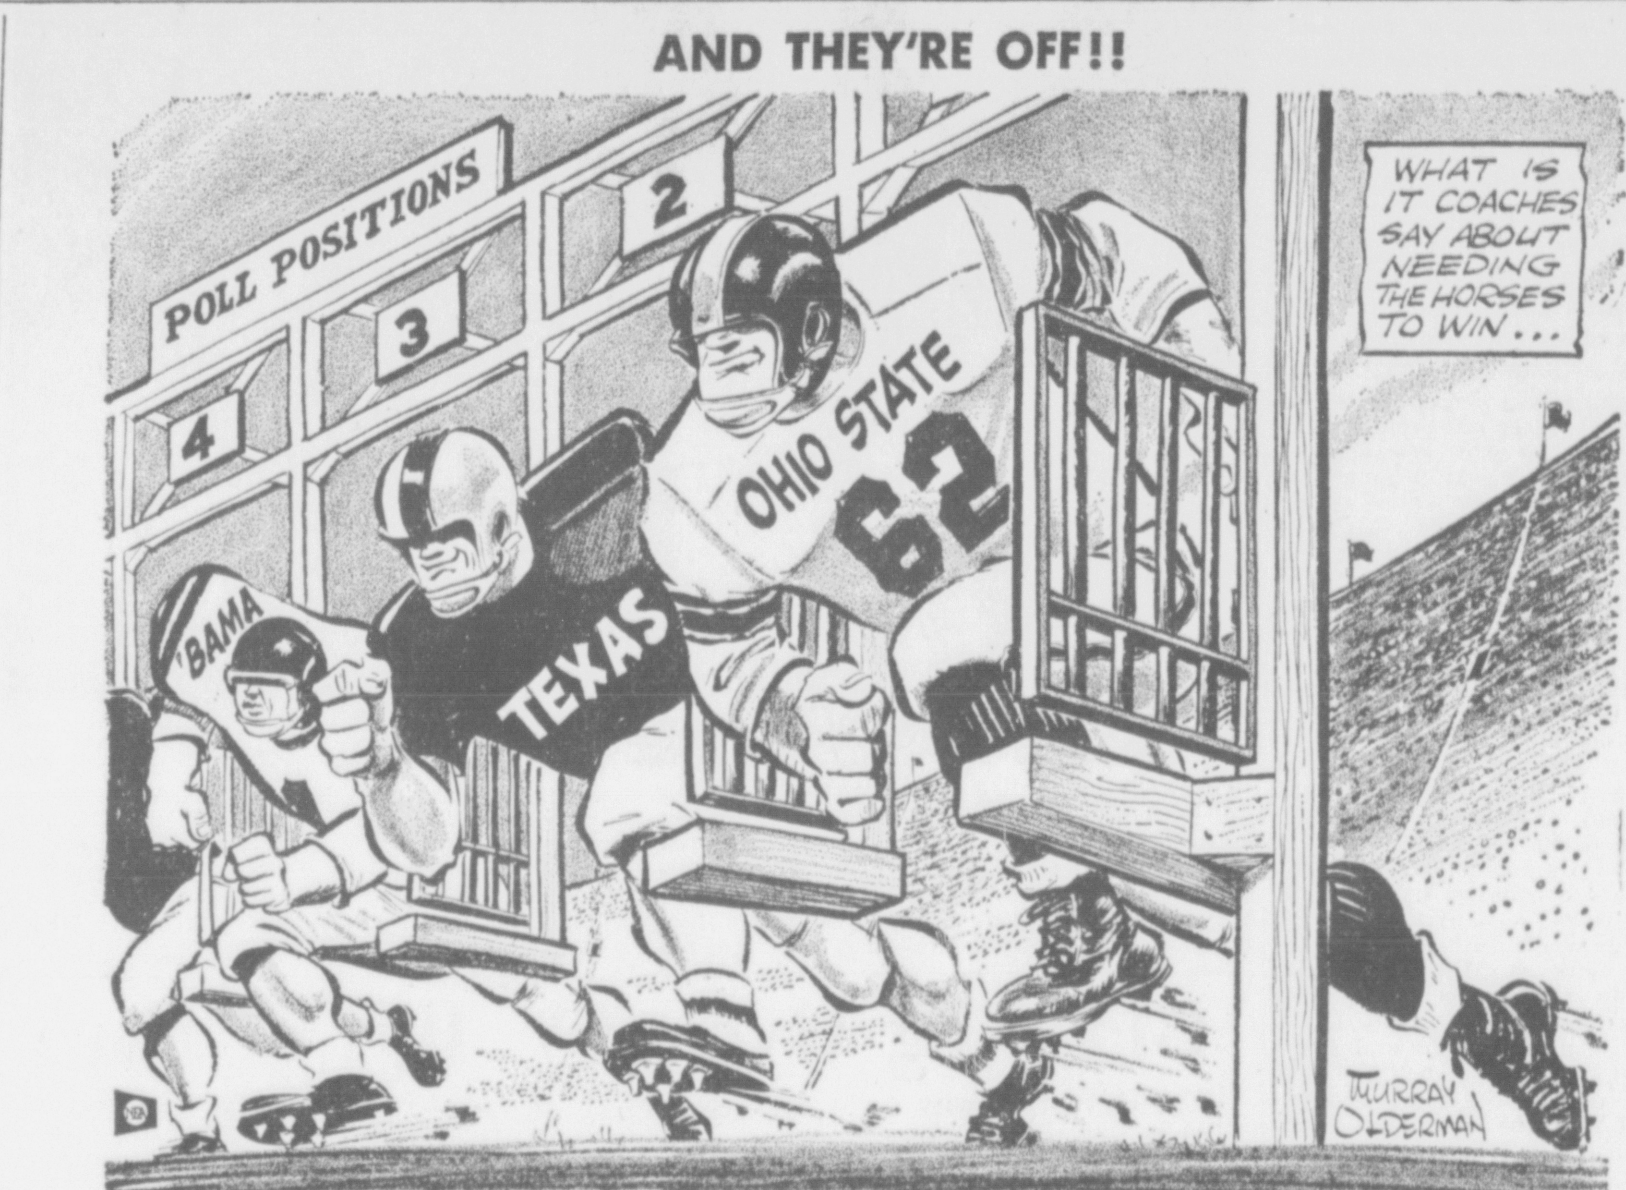

Jacksonville Tops Atlanta, 4-2

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Batting champ Vic Davallio smashed reliever Mel Nelson's first pitch in the seventh inning for a three-run home run Monday night to give Jacksonville a 4-2 victory in the opener of the final International League playoffs.

Davallio hit his 360-foot shot over the right field wall after starter Leroy Gregory issued a pair of walks to bring the Suns from behind and give rookie left-hander Tommy John his initial playoff triumph.

Gregory walked Larry Brown with one away to start his seventh frame downfall. Harry Chitt battled for John and worked the Atlanta southpaw for a free ticket.

After throwing one ball to Davallio, Gregory was lifted by manager Joe Schultz in favor of Lefty Nelson. Davallio wasted no time in pasting a line drive well over the brick fence.

Fiberglass Pole Gets IAAF Nod

BELGRADE (AP) — The International Amateur Athletic Federation, without saying so, has placed its stamp of approval on the fiberglass pole used by most pole vaulters in the United States.

The IAAF Monday accepted the world record of 16 feet, 2½ inches set by Finland's Nikula Pentti as a world pole vault record. Pentti used a fiberglass pole.

Until then, the IAAF—official governing body of track and field around the world—had passed over records submitted by vaulters who had used fiberglass poles.

The IAAF also ratified numerous world records, including several by Americans. But it did not act on the 27-foot, 3 inch broad jump set by Igor Ter-Ovanesyan of the Soviet Union. A spokesman explained that it had not yet been submitted. Instead, it recognized Ralph Boston's 27-1¼ as the record.

It also ratified Hal Connolly's 321-10 hammer throw, Dallas Long's 65-10½ discus put, Al Oerter's 264-10½ discus throw, Frank Budd's 9.2 for the 100-yard dash, Jim Beatty's 8:29.8 for two miles, the 39.1 400-meter relay by the quartet of Hayes Jones, Budd, Charlie Frazier and Paul Drayton, the 16:09 4-mile relay by the University of Oregon, the 20.5 for 220 yards by Drayton, the 40.9 for the 440-yard relay (turn) by Oregon and Wilma Rudolph Ward's 11.2 for the women's 100 meters.

Maroon Harriers Set To Open Season Friday

Coach G. Warren Kias is counting on four veteran point makers to carry a big share of the load as the Kingston High Cross Country team debuts Friday at Monticello.

Richard Cyr, Dave Ennis, Barry Goggin and Charles Lawrence were members of the solid squad which won five straight dual matches last year before running into the virus bug. With several of the members stricken by the virus, the locals still managed a third place in the annual DUSO meet and fourth in the Section 9 meet.

Missing from that squad are Bruce Eyman, the number one runner, as well as Joe Barr and Frank Fabbiano.

Top candidates from an initial squad of 45 are George Brocco, Ed Semmer, Robert Plattman, Jeff Davis, Al Navy, Dan Smith, Joe Esposito, Al Werbalowsky, Larry Armstead and Gerald Conrad.

Dutchmen Win Crown, Beat Catskill, 9-6

NFA Features Johnson, Hill

Only four regulars are returning at Newburgh Free Academy but two of them are fullback Charles Johnson and halfback Jim Hill, a pair of brilliant stars. With these two likely to explode for long runs at any time, Coach Rip Fornal is now hoping he can mould a line of championship proportions at the Hilly City school.

Johnson is a 6-foot, 200-pounder who looks like a small version of a Sherman tank. Hill is a hinge-hipped runner with a lot of speed. He was an All-DUSO selection last year.

In addition to Johnson and Hill, Fornal is counting on Charles Tudor, another mercury footed youngster.

Tim Fogarty, a second stringer last year, figures to be the starting quarterback.

Other halfbacks are Eugene McDowell, Richard Hiten, Len Belvedere, John Rizzuto, Les Lawlor, Senior Dick Champion is the fullback backing up Johnson and John Walsh.

The line is anchored by captain John Siebert at right tackle and Ray Ruckdeschel at end. Ron Lacy, William Lawlor, James Sartin and Ed Granados are other tackle hopefuls. Two sophomores—Bob Westphal and Les Johnson—are seeking guard berths as are Vince Clavio, Mike Dubaldi and Jim Castleberry.

In addition to Ruckdeschel, the other ends are Wayne Conline, Jim Benton, Bill Nechy, Tony Ruggiero and Bob Scott. Dom Moresco is the center.

The Goldies open their season on Sept. 29 against Yonkers Central.

YMCA Cage Meeting Scheduled Tonight

The final meeting of Kingston YMCA Fall Basketball League managers will take place tonight. Physical Director Steve Orozco invites all managers who attended the earlier meetings as well as any new team representatives.

Ten teams are slated to open the season on Tuesday, Sept. 25. Tonight's meeting will feature a discussion on the league constitution, schedule and election of league officers.

Stan Tentnowski rapped two doubles and a pair of singles in leading the Saugerties Dutchmen to a 9-6 victory over Catskill Sunday at Cantine Field and the championship of the Catskill Mountain League.

While Ted Bream limited the visitors to eight hits, the Dutchmen socked 15 off the combined slants of Bob Trowbridge, ex-braves hurler and Mike Zowak.

Trailing, 5-4, starting the last of the sixth the champions pushed three runs across the dish and then coasted the rest of the way.

In addition to Tentnowski, John Parete had three singles and scored four runs while Mike Dodig, Armstrong and Ted Bream had two safeties each.

Catskill and Saugerties had finished the regular season in a tie for the top spot. It marked the first league championship for Coach Joe Benjamin and the Dutchmen.

Little Gardens Group Plans Fall Events Program

Mrs. Andrew Evans was hostess to the Saugerties Society of Little Gardens Wednesday afternoon at her home in High Woods. Mrs. David Jones, president, presented Mrs. Evans with a corsage with best wishes from the club. Mrs. Evans, the former Mrs. Nellie Van Lengen was recently married to Mr. Evans.

Ulster County Garden Club Day will be observed on Oct. 25 at Lake Minnevaska. About Oct. 1 all county garden club members will receive notice of details.

A flower show practice workshop will be held Oct. 5 in the Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston, at 10 a. m. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. David Jones by Sept. 29.

Miss Bertha Snyder reported Carlton King, local landscape gardener, had expressed his concern to her about the roadside spraying which has done so much damage over a wide area of the neighboring countryside. The result of this spraying has killed so much wild plant life, as well as being unsightly. The club is in accordance with Mr. King's interest.

The club goes on record as being in favor of the community college site on the former Winston Farm in the township. Sept. 26 the members will visit Sterling Forest Gardens. Anyone desiring transportation may contact Mrs. Harold Kamp. Plans are to meet at the Thruway entrance at 9:30 a. m.

In preparation of next year's program the president announced the following committees—Program chairman Mrs. Morris Rosendahl; nominating committee, Mrs. Robert M. Freligh, chairman, Miss Janet Ziegler and Mrs. Henry Schroeder.

A panel discussion on dried material followed the business meeting. Miss Bertha Snyder, Miss Jane Ziegler and Mrs. George Sawutz presented interesting information on the uses of garden material, also wild flowers and greens which can be used for drying for winter bouquets. A large selection of the material was available to members at the meeting. The following are appropriate for winter arrangements—Hazel nut, milk weed pod, money plant (or Honesty), golden rod, baptisia, clover, iris pods, dock, cat nine tails, grasses, bellies of Ireland, and many others.

Assisting the hostess with the refreshments were Mrs. Henry Schroeder and Mrs. Dorrance Baker.
